A perfect late-summer day saw 59 women connected to the oil industry take over the Elk Point Golf and Country Club on Saturday for the fourth annual Diamond Drillbit Golf Tournament.

After two rounds of golf and ample time for socializing, the women enjoyed a barbecued steak supper before they crowded around organizers Wanda Cochrane, Susan MacKinnon and Shaina Lee for the presentation of prizes to the top three golfers in each of nine flights. The flight champions each received a golf bag embroidered with the tournament logo, with second and third place winners also receiving prizes embroidered with the tournament logo.

Winners were: Flight One – 1. Chantel Bonnier, 2. Dennell Anderson, 3. Clare Desaulniers; Flight Two – 1.

Debbie Horbach, 2. Emily Johnson, 3. Shaina Lee; Flight Three – 1. Randa Meyer, 2. Connie Olstad, 3. Gillian Cousins; Flight Four – 1. Cecile Demers,

2. Susan MacKinnon, 3. Tina Bodurka; Flight Five – 1. Candy Desjarlais, 2. Marj Neudorf, 3. Melanie Best; Flight Six – 1. Amy Wygle, 2. Tina

Campbell, 3. Corrine Cumby; Flight Seven – 1. Donna Spielmacher, 2. Carol Lee, 3. Debbie Hahn; Flight Eight – 1. Jessica Jurak, 2. Sharla Eliuk, 3. Debra Cameron; Flight Nine – 1. Beth Yushchysyn, 2. Yolanda Kinjerski, 3. Lisa Nielsen.

A series of hole prizes was also awarded, along with a special prize to Colleen Anderson, who won a putt-off over Emily Johnson.

The organizers called for a round of applause for all those who helped to put the tournament together and to carry out the numerous details of the fun-filled and successful day, and were rewarded with another round of applause for their own efforts.

A vast selection of door prizes was handed out to golfers and guests, as everyone eagerly awaited the seven major prizes at the conclusion.

Prentice named Premier-designate

MIKE PICKFORD
Review Contributor

After a whirlwind battle for leadership of the Progressive Conservative party, Alberta finally has a man in place who promises to bring "positive change" to a party in disarray as former federal cabinet minister Jim Prentice ran out to a landslide victory in Saturday's election.

In what has been revealed to be a record-low in voter turnout, Prentice swept aside both Thomas Lukaszuk and Ric McIver, receiving a staggering 77 per cent of the party members' votes to be named the Premier-designate of Alberta.

Speaking to media following his victory, Prentice promised to rebuild what he described as a "broken party" once he is formally introduced to the legislature later this year.

"I want to be candid with the people of Alberta, with those of you who are here tonight, for those of you who are watching and for those of you who will read these words over time," Prentice said. "The government has lost its way, and watching from afar, I was as disappointed and frustrated as anyone."

Prentice garnered over 17,000 votes in the election with his competitors McIver and Lukaszuk collecting 2,742 and 2,681 votes respectively.

Regarded as the heavy favourite heading into the race, Prentice was backed by 50 of the 59 MLA's currently in office to lead the party into a new period of trust and dependability. MLA for Bonnyville-Cold Lake Genia Leskiw was one of those to throw her support behind Prentice and she believes the provincial PCs now have "the right man" in place to revitalize the broken party.

"I'm ecstatic with the results of this weekend's leadership election," Leskiw said Monday. "I came out very early on with my support for Mr. Prentice and I'm hoping that the promises he made come to fruition."

It is expected that Prentice will announce a by-election in another Calgary riding, with Calgary-Mackay-Nose Hill MLA Neil Brown offering to leave his seat so Prentice can run.

Elk Point Chamber of Commerce was back in business last week with their first meeting after the summer break, and set Friday, November 28 as the date for the 2014 Christmas Extravaganza.

F. G. Miller High School contacted the chamber earlier that week and said they are willing and eager to take back the craft fair, which they have traditionally held in conjunction with their annual book fair, but gave up for the past two years while their gym was undergoing major renovations.

Photos with Santa will continue to be held at the Seniors' Recreation Centre.

Further planning for the big kickoff to the Christmas season will be underway shortly, and businesses and groups are urged to bring forth ideas for added attractions for that evening.

Heinsburg hitting the trail again for Haying in the 30s

VICKI BROOKER
Review Staff

Heinsburg will be a beehive of activity on Saturday as horse enthusiasts, cyclists, quadders and hikers all hit the trail to support Haying in the 30s Cancer Support Society. This is the fourth annual Heinsburg Trail Day, and with three previous successes to their credit, the organizers are looking forward to another great event that will benefit a very worthwhile cause.

"Everyone is welcome to join us," Marjorie Scott says, "Wagons, horses and riders, quads, bicycles, hikers and folks who would like to ride on a wagon." You can even come early, she notes, with overnight camping available at the Water Tower Campsite and a Friday evening sing-along, chili and buns by the campfire for the early arrivals. Saturday morning starts off with coffee and muffins from 8 to 10:30 a.m. and registration from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m.,

The ride starts at 11 a.m. and will go from Heinsburg to Middle Creek and return, with lunch supplied at Middle Creek. This year for the first time, there will be a potluck supper when everyone returns to Heinsburg.

There is no fee to join the ride, but donations will be collected and will go directly to Haying in the 30s Cancer Support Society.

Drillbit

The coveted Diamond Drillbit necklace went to Sharla Eliuk, the diamond earrings to Susan MacKinnon and a Fantasyland Hotel getaway to Melissa Rogal. Coralee Pavoll went home with a handsome new set of golf clubs, Kali Cousins with a patio heater, Bonnie Fairbairn with a Pandora bracelet and Melinda Henderson with a bistro set as the event drew to a close.

THANK YOU

Richard Lameman wishes to take this opportunity to share his heartfelt gratitude, to all his family, friends and supporters of the

5th Annual Lameman Family & Friends Invitational Golf Tournament

The tournament was held this past weekend at the Elk Point Golf & Country Club, with over 15 teams of 4 taking part. This was the first year we requested community support for prizes for the attendees. These were well received from everyone. The tournament was simply for some R&R and having a wonderful time. Thank you to everyone.

Entries down at Horticulture, Craft Show

VICKI BROOKER
Review Staff

The 2014 Elk Point Agricultural Society Horticulture and Craft Show had an almost 10 per cent decline in both entrants and entries over last year's figures, organizers learned at last week's wrap-up meeting.

The quilt show also had a marked drop in submissions from last year, and board members were urged to "Start quilting now!" to increase next year's display.

The show's largest section, the Junior Fair, experienced a seven per cent drop, with other significant declines noted in sewing, flowers, house plants, canning, fresh fruit and photography.

Only the Seniors, Vegetables and Baking sections experienced significant increases.

Taking entries at the west door of the arena proved to be considerably more efficient, and this year's layout of the arena also worked well for art show exhibitors, trade show vendors and the show's convenors.

- Living in Canada, we don't consider bugs as part of our daily diet but the United Nations reports that over 2 billion people worldwide supplement their diets with insects. Insects are actually quite nutritious being high in protein, fat and minerals. For example, caterpillars have more protein than beef. (Now if we can just get over the "ick" feeling of insect consumption...)
- Sometimes visiting your doctor, you are given a lot of information and it can be hard to keep it all straight. At the end of the visit, try this: repeat back the main instructions your doctor has given you to ensure you got it right. It helps the doctor and it will certainly make things clearer for you. Your doctor won't mind.
- More women are having their first baby later in life compared to their counterparts of a generation ago. There were nine times more first births to women over 35 than there were 40 years ago. On the plus side, these children seem to fare better due to better economic security. On the negative side, older women are at greater risk of having complications like diabetes and heart problems during pregnancy.
- Here's another reason to stop smoking especially if you are a parent. It seems that children of smoking parents are more likely to experiment with cigarettes and end up being heavy smokers themselves.
- If you need help quitting smoking, our pharmacists can help. Talk to them.

OUR VIEWS

In praise of grandparents

VICKI BROOKER

Review Staff

This coming Sunday is Grandparents' Day, a time to celebrate the unconditional love, encouragement and support that these individuals provide to the younger generations of their families.

According to a leading parenting magazine, "It is physically, spiritually, and emotionally healthy for children to have a close relationship with someone at the opposite end of the age spectrum."

The US Department of Health and Human Services spells out some of the benefits of having a grandparent or grandparents:

Parents clearly benefit from having a grandparent in a child's life: There's that extra pair of hands for diapering, soothing, cooking, and reliable childcare. But the children benefit, as well.

Grandparents provide a sense of family continuity and history. They have stories to tell and are great transmitters of the family's cultural heritage. They contribute to the children's sense of belonging and security. They become additional role models, often have more time than do parents for reading stories, teaching new skills, and playing games; and have a vested interest in the well-being and healthy development of their grandchildren.

This coming Sunday, Elk Point and district will celebrate the contributions of grandparents in and around our community with an event that helps not only grandparents and other seniors, but also their grandchildren and great-grandchildren. While portions of the funds raised by pledges in the Grandparents' Day Walk will go to the Seniors' Recreation Centre and the Handi Bus that transports seniors and others with mobility impairments, the remaining portion will go to help complete the new dormitories at Whitney Lake Camp, where local youngsters have enjoyed school camp-outs and summer camps for generations. It's a cause that grandparents would be eager to support, because virtually all of them will tell you that they want the best for their grandchildren.

Let's all go for a walk, eat some cake and enjoy the company of our grandchildren at Elk Point Grandparents' Day celebration this Sunday afternoon. See you there!

Way Back When...

Split vote, rodeo champion, Centennial ambassador

HERE'S THE NEWS THAT MADE THE HEADLINES OF THE LAKELAND REVIEW AND ELK POINT REVIEW FOR THE WEEK OF SEPT. 9 IN...

1984

A long, hot summer for town council ended with a split vote on the purchase of the recreation land from Dr. K. C. Miller for $150,000 after more fiery debate that involved three other potential parcels of land, finally agreeing to the purchase on a three-to-two vote. Elk Point Chamber of Commerce tourism chairman Ron Barwick reported that over 1,600 visitors had signed the guest book at the tourist information booth, 191 of them from out of the province, coming from as far away as New York city and Port au Prince, Haiti.

1989

There was much indecision in both the town and county as nomination day for municipal elections neared, with only one town councillor, Marshall Kachmar, making a decision, and deciding not to seek re-election due to a very heavy business workload. The Elk Point Pacers kicked off the F. G. Miller High School's basketball backboard fundraising with a $1,000 donation.

1994

C. J. Best, a 17-year-old cowboy from Heinsburg, won the Novice Horse Riding championship at the Lakeland Rodeo Association finals in St. Paul, where junior barrel racer Erica Nielsen missed winning the championship by less than one-tenth of a second. Taralee ad James Babenek held a 4-H Pheasant Project achievement day to show off their birds and facility used for the unique project.

1999

A dozen retired teachers with a combined total of well over three centuries of teaching years to their credit gathered to celebrate the beginning of another school year away from the halls of learning with a toast to their successors. St. Paul Regional School Board was tight-lipped on the details but had signed a memorandum of agreement with the teachers for a three-year contract settlement, narrowly averting a strike.

2004

Danielle Schnurer of Elk Point was among 100 Centennial Ambassadors named by Minister of Community Development Gene Zwozdesky, with their task to motivate and encourage Alberta residents, groups and individuals to become involved in the province's 2005 centennial celebrations. Response to the chamber of commerce 'Shop Locally' campaign was far greater than expected, with over 11,000 entries counted by chamber staff after the prize draws were made on July 1.

2009

Elk Point cowboy Charlie Young was named the Lakeland Rodeo Association's Cowboy of the Year at the first performance of the 2008 LRA Showdown finals. Elk Point Chamber of Commerce was facing the new season with enthusiasm, and many ideas coming forth for the EcoCentre project, from a shopping spree fundraiser to plans to have a university student staffing the visitor information centre for six months the following summer.

IN MEMORIAM

SERNIAK, Sheena Dawn

Oct. 19, 1985-Sept. 9, 2002

*At night when I fall asleep
She is all I dream of
The one who always has my heart
My angel from above
I want to hold her in my arms
Comfort her when she weeps
Be there to tuck her in at night
Then gently kiss her cheek
I want to tell her sweet dreams
Before she lays her head to rest
Then whisper softly in her ear
"To have you, I'm truly blessed"
I want to be able to love her
Prove to her that she's my world
Then I wake up crying tears
Because I'm without my little girl
My days without you hurt so bad
I still love you to the moon & back
And every day till we meet again
I'll wish I had you here with me.*

Love - Dad

IN MEMORIAM

In Loving Memory of LORENSON, Sheila Margaret

June 22, 1938-Sept. 15, 2008

*What would we give her hand to clasp,
Her patient face to see,
To hear her voice, to see her smile,
As in the days that used to be.
But some sweet day we'll meet again
Beyond the toil and strife,
And clasp each other's hand once more,
In heaven, that happy life.
Always remembered and never forgotten, Ronnie and Family.*

LRA names champions

VICKI BROOKER
Review Staff

The Lakeland Rodeo Association named its 2014 champions at the Showdown finals in St. Paul, Aug. 28 to 31.

The finals proved challenging for all the contestants, with only three season leaders in the champion lineup. Steer wrestler Glen Allen Nash, placed first in three performances to take the Jones Boys Western Wear award and the Trach Rodeo Ltd. season leader buckle home to Drayton Valley.

Dustin Shaver of Crooked Creek won all five go-rounds to win the LRA championship and the season leader buckle from Signs and Graphics by Foss.

The third season leader to win a championship was Pee-wee Barrel Racer Kalli Beebe of Islay, who also won all five go-rounds to take home the Lincoln County Oilfield Services award and the champion-buckle from Susan Early.

Three other champions came into the finals sitting second/ Bryce West of Cadogan was second in the Junior Bull Riding, behind season leader Colton

Kidner of Yellowhead County, but had top scores in two performances and second in another to win the championship.

Valerie Frey of Athabasca came into the Ladies' Barrel Racing behind Carolyn Knapp of Mayerthorpe, winner of the Salix Management Resource buckle. Frey won the Thursday and Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon performances and added a second, to win the Welsh's Saddlery and Western Wear award. She was also the Finals Trailer winner.

Team ropers Troy Fischer and Tyler Batchelor came into the finals behind Dennis Johnson of Strathmore and Colin Robertson and picked up first, second, third and fourth prize money during the weekend to win the championship. Season leader buckles went to Johnson and Robertson, who had two first place runs and a third during the weekend, with one of their runs the fastest of the weekend at 4.0 seconds.

LRA Showdown

Bareback winner Tate Hartell, came into the finals in sixth spot, but placed third on Friday, won both Saturday shows and the final on Sunday to qualify for the Xtreme Oilfield Technology championship buckle. Season leader Brandon Stewart of Innisfail, took home the Miller Rodeo buckle.

Coy Robbins of Camrose came into the Junior Steer Riding in third spot, but wins on Thursday, Friday and Saturday night earned him the championship sponsored by Vision Credit Union. Season leader Paul Wanchuk of Boyne Lake, recipient of the X6 Ranch buckle, won the other two and placed second on Thursday.

Shaylee McMann of Donalda came in to the finals third in the Junior Barrels, and won the Thursday night, Saturday afternoon and evening and Sunday to claim the St. Paul Dodge championship. Spencer Young won Friday's performance, placed fourth on Sunday, third on Saturday and second on Friday. Season leader Paige Manning of Edson had two seconds and a third for the Troy Fischer Silverworks buckle.

The St. Paul Journal's Tie Down Roping buckle went to Blair Smith of Wimborne, who placed fifth coming into Showdown, and added a first place time, a third and a fourth to win the championship. Season leader Jim Gunsch of Thorsby took home another buckle sponsored by the Journal, along with a first and second paycheck for the weekend.

Tyler Kampjes of Bon Accord came to the finals sitting fifth, but added up a first place score and three thirds to win the CFCW championship. Season leader Tyler Wilson of Meadow Lake, Sask., won the first go-round and placed second and third later in the weekend, taking home the John Duffy Rodeo buckle.

Bull Riding champion Tyrell Ward of Three Hills was way down in eighth place at the end of the season, but proved his skills by winning both Thursday's and Friday's go rounds for the Bearing Oilfield Services championship. Season leader Jordan Wasieczko of Fawcett had a disappointing weekend with no trips to the pay window, taking home the Read Road/IncrediBull buckle for the season win.
